Words of Encouragement

“You have been called to speak into the confusion with gospel clarity and authority. You have been called to give glory-bound hope to those who have become hopeless. You are called to speak liberating truths to those who have become deceived. You have been called to plead with disloyal children to once again be reconciled to their heavenly Father. You have been called to give glorious motivation to those who have given up. You have been called to shine the light of the glory of God into hearts that have been made dark by looking for life in all the wrong places. You have been called to offer the filling glories of grace to those who are empty and malnourished. You have been called to represent a glorious King, who alone is able to rescue, heal, redeem, transform, forgive, deliver, and satisfy. You have been called.” -Paul David Tripp

Pray for the Unreached:

Mali People of India
Population: 12,151,000 | Primary Religion:
Hinduism | Percent Evangelical Christian:
0.01%

The Mali are traditionally known as flower and vegetable gardeners. The word Mali is derived from the Sanskrit word “mala” meaning “garland.” Most Mali are Hindi and worship a warrior goddess called Devi. They fear her and sacrifice animals to please her. Please pray for them to hear the Gospel, and to turn to the only true hope and rescue found in Christ.
